

Bank Annapolis

Situation BankAnnapolis is a full-service community bank that serves commercial and retail customers in Maryland. While its distinctive lion logo and flagship building were recognized by the local community, BankAnnapolis' overall visibility among other community banks in the region was relatively low. As a result, BankAnnapolis was looking to generate more general top-of-mind awareness not only for the bank but also for specific banking products.

Furthermore, in light of growing national concern about the viability and available resources of large national banks, BankAnnapolis saw a significant opportunity to position itself as a financial institution that individuals and businesses could count on. In addition, the bank was celebrating its 20th anniversary—an occasion that reinforced its longevity and dedication to the surrounding community.

Solution Brand Awareness—Bank Annapolis turned to the Channel team to develop a brand platform with greater presence and appeal across a range of marketing materials. In order to be fully informed of perceptions and viewpoints of all relevant audiences, we conducted a comprehensive series of interviews with BankAnnapolis employees, business customers, retail customers and prospects. The resulting information served as the basis for an integrated branding campaign with radio, print, online and in-branch merchandising. Touting the bank's long-running presence and commitment to the region, the campaign gave confidence to customers and prospects in the bank's ability to serve their financial needs in uncertain times.

Private Business Banking—We were also tasked with generating additional awareness for the bank's Private Business Banking program. The agency developed a series of print ads that featured individual officers, with copy focusing on their experience in banking as well as their dedication to community success. We also created a series of web components to further support the program; these online elements provided website guests with a direct communication link to individual bankers.

Mortgage Banking—In addition, we developed a series of mortgage collateral pieces for Bank Annapolis. Separate brochures were created to speak to homeowners and real estate professionals. A comprehensive guide was also created to give homeowners all the information they needed to know when purchasing and building a new home from the ground up.

Debit Banking — BankAnnapolis wanted to educate non-activated debit card holders of the benefits of debit card banking in order to generate additional card usage. Our team created a campaign that included a series of letters (aimed at three types of debit card holders), a companion insert piece that further explained benefits, in-branch displays and an online component on the bank's home page. As a follow-up, we developed a similar campaign to promote BankAnnapolis' text messaging services for debit cardholders, which allowed customers to check account balances and perform other banking functions on their mobile phone.

Result

The re-freshened branding campaign and materials have helped BankAnnapolis establish a stronger presence in the marketplace and attract greater recognition of officers in its private business banking, commercial real estate and mortgage divisions. And, in spite of the difficult economic climate, deposits have risen, loan volumes are up and inquiries about Private Business Banking services have increased. Several prospective clients have cited the new marketing materials as one of the reasons they contacted BankAnnapolis.
